

Adams Post 146 is there after tornado strikes

Twister takes down half of Taopi, a town 4 miles away

ADAMS — Adams Post 146 had its regularly monthly meeting on Tuesday, April 12.

On the drive home, that's when the rain and wind came along, and so did an F2 tornado that struck Taopi, a town of 65 people four miles to the west. The Legionnaires in and around Taopi largely belong to the Adams post. Adams has a population of 775.

Post 146 Commander Dennis Lewison said his wife, Nancy, began calling other Auxiliary Unit 146 members the next day with the idea of serving soup to tornado victims. They received loads of soups, cookies and supplies. On Thursday, April 14, Unit 146 served lunch at the post home as a free meal for tornado victims. Members of the public ate, too, and they donated $6,000.

As a result, the Legion Family began spearheading a fundraiser, not just a meal. Lewison called it the Taopi Relief Fund.

Nat'l Commander Dillard emphasizes prevention of veteran suicides

By Tim Engstrom

ST. PAUL — A veteran is a veteran is a veteran.

To prevent veteran suicides, it is important that they contact each other, Buddy Check each other and stay in touch.

"That might just be the most important phone call you ever make," said National Commander Paul Dillard at St. Paul Arcade Phalen Post 577. "Call friends, neighbors, families, check on them."

Dillard made similar comments at stops across the state during the National Commander's Tour of Minnesota in mid-April.

Maybe a health condition, the loss of a job or taking less of a job has impacted their sense of purpose.

"It just might be that phone call that got them over the hump," Dillard said.

He urged veterans to make at least one call a day.

"It saves lives."

Dillard's theme for his year as national commander is: "No Veteran Left Behind."

There were about 120 people in attendance that evening at Post 577. These stops attract American Legion Family members but also draw in some members of the general public, as well as media outlets. The breakfast stop at Red Wing Post 45 also had about 120 folks. Lunch at Dodge Center Post 384 had around 85.

Blustery weather impacted much of the remainder of the tour. The Owatonna Post 77 dinner had 55 as a storm passed through. Around 50 packed into Austin Post 91, with a tornado striking nearby Taopi the previous evening. There were reports of many Legionnaires out helping to clean up. Lunch at Blue Earth's beautiful Post 89 had about 45. Dinner in Fairmont, which got to display its new post home, had 110.

Around 60 people arrived for breakfast at the former sports fieldhouse that is Brewster Post 464, and about 90 showed up for the dinner banquet at Pipestone Post 6, not counting the many customers at the bar and grill.

Considering both the restaurant and banquet were busy, it was the evening hotspot.

Dillard appeared on Eden Prairie-based Fox 9 to begin his tour. Along the way, he visited the 934th Airlift Wing at Fort Snelling and the Minnesota Department of Veterans Affairs and American Legion claims offices at the federal Bishop Whipple

State and fed VA announce Vet Center outstation

But standing it up will take over 2 years

ST. CLOUD — In reaction to seeing troops struggle after returning from wars in the Middle East, the Minnesota American Legion passed a resolution, calling for the VA to build three new Vet Centers in Minnesota.

That was in 2011.

For years, Legionnaires have spoken with state and federal officials about how Minnesota has among the worst ratios of veterans to Vet Centers in the nation. There are only three: Anoka, St. Paul and Duluth. Iowa and North Dakota, by comparison, each have four. Wisconsin has six.

Eventually, Legionnaires and state officials determined St. Cloud, Bemidji and Mankato would be the preferred locations for them.

On March 28, news arrived. The VA announced it plans to create a Vet Center Outstation in St. Cloud.

State Rep. Bob Dettmer, 71, plans to retire from state politics after the current legislative session.

Under Rotunda, Rep. Bob Dettmer gives farewell address to veterans

ST. PAUL — Veterans Day on the Hill on April 20 was a time to tell state leaders about legislation Minnesota military veterans want passed, but this time around, it also was the farewell for state Rep. Bob Dettmer, the House's ranking member when it comes to veterans affairs.

Dettmer, a member of Forest Lake Post 225, is not seeking re-election this fall. He was first elected in 2006. He is a retired teacher and Army Reserve chief warrant officer. He and his wife are moving from Forest Lake to Florida but plans to visit Minnesota in the summers. His sons, both West Point graduates, are now lieutenant colonels in the Army.

"They outrank me, so I have to salute them," he told the Legion, VFW, DAV and Amvets members gathered at the Capitol Rotunda. "But I tell them I am the commander in chief in my own house — whenever their mother isn't around."

Some of Dettmer's accomplishments were eliminating state tax in military pensions, securing funding for three new veterans homes (construction begins this fall), eliminating the eight-year limit spouses faced to receive the homestead property-tax exclusion, allowing those spouses to have a one-time change of residence while keeping the exclusion, securing

Gov. Tim Walz walked down the hall from his office to speak to the veterans at the Capitol Rotunda.

Veterans Day on the Hill sheds light on cause for an omnibus veterans bill funding for the construction of the Medal of Honor Memorial at the Veterans Service Building (presently under construction), expanding the Minnesota G.I. Bill to include apprenticeships and on-the-job training, lowering property tax rates for VFW and Legion posts to 1 percent, authorizing Purple Heart cities and counties and designating March 29 as Vietnam Veterans Day in Minnesota.

The chairman of the committee that handles veterans affairs, Robert Ecklund of International Falls, a member of Minnesota At-Large Post 1982, said the House has a veterans omnibus bill that includes funding to assist the Minnesota Department of Veterans Affairs with its suicide prevention efforts.

“This includes education at places where guns are for sale, proactive engagement with at-risk veterans and the development of a pilot for mobile mental health crises services tailored for veterans,” Ecklund said.

He said the bill also allocates $10 million toward ending veteran homelessness. The goal is to have temporary supportive housing to deal with veterans experiencing homelessness and permanent housing so veterans have a place to meet needs, and funding support for landlords to encourage them to offer tenancy to veterans.

The bill, he said, has service bonuses for post-9/11 veterans, enlistment and re-enlistment bonuses for National Guard members, grants for county veteran service officers and increased grant funding for veteran service organizations.

“Have we got a bill for you? The veterans bill has about everything we talked about today,” Ecklund said.

Sen. Andrew Lang, with Olivia Post 186, also said he favors a veterans omnibus bill. He thanked the veterans for their support of last year’s Veterans Restorative Justice Act.

A stream of speakers took the podium: Dilks, Minnesota Veterans Affairs Commissioner Larry Herke, MACVSO Legislative Director Greg Peterson, MACVSO President Martin Howes, MACV President Neal Loidolt, MACV Chief Operating Officer Jon Lovald and Commanders Task Force Chair and DAV Minnesota Commander Ron Haugen.

Haugen noted the state says there are 312,843 veterans in Minnesota, and if families are added in, that brings the legislative clout of the veterans community to 1 million votes.

Prior to the Rotunda, the veterans enjoyed a catered meal at the Armory, paid for by the DAV of Minnesota. There, Lovald recognized American Legion Auxiliary Honorary Junior President Ashley Stai, an 18-year-old who set out to raise $1,500 for MACV. She raised over $10,000.

MACV is the Minnesota Assistance Council for Veterans and it offers housing, employment and legal services to veterans in need.

About 300 people attended Veterans Day on the Hill. It brought together veterans wearing primarily American Legion, VFW, DAV, JWV and other congressionally chartered organizations with garrison caps.

Notably absent at Veterans Day on the Hill and all other state legislative advocacy for veterans are people from the array of so-called “pop-up veterans organizations” whose main missions seem to be fundraising, not veterans.

Dettmer cited a list of unfinished business. Eliminating property tax altogether for VFW and Legion post homes was among them. Dettmer was able to get the language into the tax bill this session, but the Tax Committee chair yanked it out the next day.

Presently, many tax assessors across Minnesota still fail to recognize state law regarding the 1 percent rate for post homes, and rising taxes has caused many post homes to close, leaving veterans without resources. The Minnesota American Legion is working to bring it to 0 percent and without needing to file annually. (National Commander Paul Dillard, during his tour of Minnesota in mid-April, said his home state of Texas does not impose property taxes on post homes.)

Dettmer called for reducing taxes on charitable gambling so the Legion and VFW posts can provide more charity to their communities. He also called for the state to ensure military recruiters have access to high schools.

He said he was endorsed by his wife to retire. They have eight grandchildren.

He thanked DAV of Minnesota Legislative Director Dilks and several people for their roles in shaping veterans-related legislation over the years, and he thanks the state Legislature for largely remaining nonpartisan on veterans-related legislation.

Veterans omnibus bill

The No. 1 push of Veterans Day on the Hill was asking lawmakers for a veterans omnibus bill.

Dilks said he is sick and tired of veterans legislation being used as a political football to pass other bills. A veterans omnibus bills keeps partisan politics away from veterans’ issues.

“We can do better, and that is why we are here today,” he said.

Gov. Tim Walz, a Legion member of Mankato Post 11, said he would much prefer to have veterans-related legislation in a veterans omnibus bill, rather than this and that language tacked into other bills. He said he would sign it.

“Only about 1 percent of the people do the work of this democracy in uniform so the other 99 percent of this democracy can live in this democracy and live in freedom,” Walz told the crowd.

He cited the Russian invasion of Ukraine as an example of how fragile democracy can be.

He praised the veterans organizations for working to get the Veterans Restorative Justice Act passed in 2021.

What are your plans for Memorial Day?

Across our nation many anticipate having an extra day off from work. A weekend for families to get together for outdoor activities and to shed off some of the long winter layers.

I spent many years looking at Memorial Day as another holiday away from work and time to get the yard cleaned up. Getting involved in veteran service organizations changed my direction and forever instilled how I observe and participate in remembering our active military and veterans not just on holidays, but every day.

Memorial Day we remember those who gave the ultimate sacrifice, those whose lives were cut short leaving families with only memories or thoughts of what could have been.

"Preserving the memories and incidents of our associations in all wars" is a part of the Preamble to the Constitution of the American Legion. This means in part, keeping alive forever the memories of the supreme sacrifices of gallant American patriots, sacrifices necessary to the winnings of wars.

I am forever grateful for the freedoms we have and the opportunities to remember and thank those who continue to protect us every day.

Last month we had the privilege to host the visit of our National Commander Paul E. Dillard. Thank you to all the posts we visited and the enormous hospitality provided.

Commander Dillard was grateful to all our members who showed up and recognized the camaraderie and dedication of our Minnesota American Legion Family.

Post and District officer elections will be taking place the next couple of months. Officers in our organization play important roles to our success. Training is vital to provide effective leadership and integrity of elected positions.

There are many opportunities available for training. Minnesota American Legion College is an excellent opportunity to get in-depth knowledge, but you can also request training at your posts or in your districts. Just ask!

Continue to invite veterans and their family to be a member of the American Legion Family! Veterans Strengthening America!

State definition of a veteran discriminates

Minnesota, through its driver's license policy, is discriminating against certain veterans of the military that reside in Minnesota. The discrimination is in the form of what is or is not required to renew a driver's license with "veteran" listed on the bottom-right corner. If you cannot meet their requirement, nothing is listed on the license. They are now at a point of ignoring my messages completely.

When I recently registered for my new license, the instructions indicated that a DD214 was required to have the "veteran" designation listed. Following communication with the Department of Public Safety, a form was provided that in context would then prevent me from meeting their requirements.

The U.S. Congress in 2016 approved a bill, signed then by President Barack Obama, that then became law whereby any veteran that served in the U.S. military for 20 years receiving retirement pay qualified as a veteran. The state of Minnesota is not using this law of 2016 to certify certain veterans as being approved for the word "veterans" to be stated on driver's licenses.

Following several requests for the Department of Public Safety to correct this discriminatory practice, nothing has happened. I respectfully request the American Legion Department of Minnesota to take swift action and report back to me the results.

Editor's note: Beginning in 2021, the Minnesota American Legion spearheaded efforts to change the state definition of a veteran to match the federal definition. It is part of our legislative agenda, and we garnered the support of other veteran service organizations through participation in the Minnesota Commander's Task Force.

The Department of Minnesota staff have had a subsequent email conversation with the retired brigadier general, and he will continue to ask questions of various state agencies on the matter.

'Danube Waltz,' anyone?

Congratulations to Dr. Joel N. Syvrud on his earning the award of The American Legion Physician of the Year.

I have been seeing him twice a year for several years now to have my toenails trimmed.

On one occasion a couple of years ago, our conversation went like this:

Dr.: So you live in Danube?

Me: Yes, that's right.

Dr.: So do you know the "Danube Waltz?"

Me: Well, yes, I am acquainted with it.

Dr.: I believe I have that on my computer. Let me bring it up.

So, he did, and it started playing.

I am probably the only veteran to get his or her toenails trimmed to the tune of the "Danube Waltz!"

Dr. Syvrud is a great American. Thank you. I am a Korean-era veteran, 1953-1955.

Veterans in Duluth must be living long

I have not been a member very long, only a few months, but I notice in the "Taps" section that there are never any from Duluth area that have passed away!

So I assume that we here live in a no death zone or there are no posts in the area that are active or never has been any!

Maybe you all should tell all veterans to move to Duluth if they want to live longer. The weather is way too nasty for diseases to live here, thus longer lives.

Gerald L. Sundberg
Minnesota Post 1982
Duluth

How far are we willing to go?

A member has sat back in the shadows, withdrawn to a point, watching and listening to others on how things should be, how it should be done now with the technology available today. Everything is all hunky-dory in some eyes, as this is the way to progress to gain more insight.

At what cost of the alienation of other members of the family are we willing to go to? At one time there was a family that was built up over the years that worked together for the betterment of others, and in a short few months, it has all been turned inside out and has caused so much resentment between family members that there are some that are leaving and going elsewhere because of it. When mentors and those of experience are leaving the family and going elsewhere, there is a huge and major problem.

It is time to reflect and take a hard look at the way some things are being done, and if there is criticism be strong enough to accept the opinions of others and see if there is a way to come to an agreement, instead of being like a bull in a China shop, and doing things however they see fit to do.

There are some who may be on power trips for whatever reasoning there is. It is far past time to take the chips off of the shoulders and look to the future as a family that is in sync and meshes well with the other members of the family.

The draft changed lives, their purpose

Before conscription ended in 1973, many a young American man's purpose in life was sidelined, demolished or ended by our country's demand for their military service.

For many, the result of this remains difficult to talk about. Having one's dreams denied or carrying out actions that are not compatible with one's own principles can set in motion a lifelong examination of purpose for living. After 1973, military service in the U.S. Armed Forces is no longer obligatory. Those now serving choose freely aligned with their values and purpose in life before commitment.

Purpose, the second aspect of spirituality, is a human endeavor to question why we are here. We seem to be the only living creature on earth that ponders this. We are hard-wired to be of benefit and do constructive acts. What gives your life meaning stems from this search and resolution your belief about God, gods or even your belief of no god.

This deep spiritual examination sets direction. Many veterans have shared with me how their military service changed their direction in life.

For those who have held that draft letter in their hands, letting go of a dream for duty is

Some members may not care for certain members of the family, but there is a way to put differences aside for the future of the family. If some members are unable to do that, then it is time to take a look in the mirror and ask the hard questions on self-reflection in that mirror.

War in your living room

I would like to respond to fellow Legionnaire Ronald Zimney's letter on presidential ego from the April issue.

Politicians have controlled our military starting way back in the Revolutionary War when the Continental Congress dictated to Gen. George Washington his every move.

Politicians have run all of our wars — through the Civil War when the politicians were divided into two countries — and down to the present day.

But what happened in Vietnam was the media and their cameras were allowed in the combat zones. And the war was broadcast directly into our living rooms. What happened was that the citizenry did not like what they saw and the generals became politicians, and the politicians became more political.

So the problem through the years has not been a single president. They are all in control, and they all argue and fight for their way. Remember the "dough-boys" were the first ever group to march into Washington, D.C., to demand their benefits.

What makes you think that anything has changed since then?

Andre-Thomas deMeules

not easy. For many it ended their life here on earth.

Joe's draft number was 37, and it was early in the war. He was set to graduate high school in four months. His plans to become an elementary school teacher kept fading away. The reality of military service put his dream on the shelf. His voice, even at the age of 92 still belies his anger; sadness and thoughts of defiance that swam in his 18-year-old head.

After the war, he has a strong desire to be a benefit through teaching. His elder reflection acknowledged that his purpose in life to be responsible, selfless, have integrity were present in military service and after.

Purpose is not void of suffering, challenge, choices and difficult decisions (and military services has all). All religions include suffering in a purposeful life. Why you are here is not to live a life devoid of strife. Difficult days will just naturally happen.

Purpose, defining your reason or trusting the heavens with your life, frames how you will act, think and do when the storms come and sun shines. Knowing that your life is on purpose, has purpose and is a benefit strengthens your sails. Purpose is found in the values you hold dear, informed by your faith and nourished by your trust in a higher power.

Finally, purpose's goal is to be of benefit. It is not confined by time or even your lived life. Planting a tree is full of purpose, value and hope. Enjoyed by you when you plant for the promise, it will continue to be evidenced even decades later. Purpose is found throughout the threads of The American Legion and is shown through those that lead, administer, give, envision, clean, prepare, fix, create, deliver and support.

ANOKA — The Minnesota Assistance Council for Veterans, also known as MACV, is returning to hosting legal clinics for veterans.

It is hosting one at 9 a.m.-3 p.m. June 2 at the Anoka County Government Center, 2100 Third Ave, Room 237, Anoka.

Join fellow veterans and families on May 27 for big Twins game

MINNEAPOLIS — Minnesota American Legion Department Commander Tom Fernlund will throw out the first pitch for the Minnesota Twins game on Friday, May 27.

It will be American Legion Family Night at Target Field. The Twins take on the Kansas City Royals.

American Legion Family members are encouraged to purchase tickets. They can be purchased from the Department of Minnesota website.

Go to mnlegion.org. Hover your cursor over “Events” and you will see “American Legion Family Night at Target Field.” There, you will see the purchase link.

“Attending sports events as a Legion Family is a long tradition among the Minnesota American Legion, going all the way back to the 1920s,” said Department Commander Tom Fernlund.

Ticket prices for Section 101, which is closer to the field, are $37. Prices for sections 306 or 307 are $18.

The Twins noted on the site: “The American Legion is a major supporter of youth baseball all across Minnesota, and this a chance to enjoy a day at Target Field watching the Minnesota Twins take on the Kansas City Royals. Legion members and their friends and families are welcome to participate.”

Minnesota American Legion Baseball is the largest Legion Baseball program in the country. As of April 25, there are 389 teams registered, beating the previous record set last year of 371 teams. In 2019, there were 366 teams.

Some registered teams usually are unable to field enough players, so the total teams for 2022, by the time the season begins, probably will end up around 383 teams, but that still would be a record.

“We hope to see you at the game,” Fernlund said.

Be sure to mark July 30 on motorcycle calendar

Legion Riders

Ted Berg

Hello Legion Family, Well, it is gradually getting warmer out and seeing a lot of bikes getting out there.

As we roll into May, there have been a couple of rides already underway with more coming up in May.

I am looking forward to getting out and putting some miles on with the different chapters in the state putting on runs, with that just want to put out a reminder that a lot of cages (vehicles with more than three wheels) that do not watch for bikes, so please be watchful for them.

This past month we got the opportunity to meet with National Commander Paul Dillard and got around to a few more posts for celebrations. It is great to get out and meet with Legion Family and share experiences and ideas for keeping the family moving forward and helping those in need.

Legacy run Aug 20-23, more info will be posted on Facebook and on the ALR website.

I would also like to welcome Redwood Falls Chapter as they got their charter and St. Augusta and Aitkin posts are also working on their charters. If you know of other posts that want to start chapters or have questions, please contact me if you need any help.

In closing, let’s keep our fingers crossed that our trip to the Capitol for Veterans Day on the Hill helped get things passed and signed to help the veterans of our state. They gave so everyone can enjoy our freedom! Ride safe.

Ted Berg of Bloomington Post 550 is the director of the Minnesota American Legion Riders.

There are changes with the reopening of the clinic. The nonprofit organization says it:

- Will no longer offer estate planning services.
- Will target low-income veterans, not all veterans.
- Will not advise family members of veterans.

“We are still willing to discuss a broad range of legal issues that may impact housing stability, including family law, criminal expungement, debt, driver’s license issues, employment, financial issues, access to benefits, and any other legal issue that impacts a veteran’s ability to become or remain housed. As always, no appointment is necessary but if a veteran has questions about what services we can provide please have them call us prior to coming out to the clinic to discuss,” MACV said in a news release.

Editor’s note: Continuous years means continuous years in The American Legion, even if the person changed posts. Don’t send in the number of years the deceased was in just your post. Send in the number of years the deceased veteran was in The American Legion. If you don’t know it, leave it blank, and we will look it up.

Correction

The era was incorrect in the “Taps” entry for William H. Yost in the April issue. He was a soldier of the Cold War, not Vietnam. He is listed again in “Taps” this month so it appears correctly.

Interestingly, many servicemembers who fell between the Korea and Vietnam war eras still joined The American Legion, often a decade or two after getting out, and their posts would mark them down as Korea and Vietnam, as “Other” wasn’t an era option before the 2019 LEGION Act. We appreciate all Legionnaires and are glad they found a way to join. If you were a Cold War servicemember and need your era fixed, contact either your post membership director or call the Department of Minnesota HQ. A veteran is a veteran is veteran.

Legion membership is not a spectator sport

While campaigning for and serving as 6th District commander, I stressed three things: communication, education and mentorship.

At the time, I felt that those three things were essential for a successful American Legion organization. To a very great extent, I still believe that to be true, but hindsight being particularly acute, I think that a fourth thing should be added to the list — participation.

Forgive me for a moment while I share something to give some context.

Years ago, while serving as a Scoutmaster, a 17-year-old Scout asked me to sign off on an application for a prestigious award he was seeking. The problem was that while he was still registered with the Scout Troop, I had not seen him at any meetings or activities for a year. Since the very first sentence on the application read, "While being active as a Scout..." I refused to sign the application.

Guest Column

I was told by some senior leadership in Scouting something that set my teeth on edge. And that was, as far as the National Council was concerned, as long as a Scout's dues are paid, they are active.

I wonder how many Legion members feel the same way, that as long as they pay their dues, they are active. Consider these names and the impact they have had on the Minnesota Legion: Dan Ludwig, Denise Milton, Pat Logan, Mark Dvorak, Tom Fernlund, Dennis Henkemeyer, Carl and Peggy Swan.

Think how The American Legion in Minnesota would be different if all of them had felt that just paying their dues was active enough.

In the American Legion Preamble, we say, "We associate ourselves together for the following purposes," and we end it by saying, "To consecrate and sanctify our comradeship..."

I read both the beginning and end of the Preamble to mean that we are supposed to be coming together to do things. I have to wonder what is going on when a post that lists more than 150 members struggles to gather a 10-person quorum at a business meeting so the business of the post can be done. Or there is a struggle each year at election time to fill the slots on their executive board. Do all of their members feel that just paying their dues is active enough and there is no need to participate in the meetings?

All of us have skills and talents that can help the Legion, whether at the post, district or department level. Not all of us can be commanders, but that is not the only way to participate. Some of us can juggle words or numbers. Some can be friendly greeters. Some of us can interpret what others have written and help guide the leadership. And many other skills that might be of use to the Legion.

I will close with this quote from Theodore Roosevelt's autobiography, "Do what you can, with what you've got, where you are."

Paul Edwards of Nisswa Post 627 is a past 6th District commander and an instructor at Minnesota American Legion College.

Oratorical champ advances

INDIANAPOLIS — Minnesota's Oratorical Contest champion, 16-year-old Megan Blonigen, advanced at the National Oratorical Contest April 22-24 in Indianapolis.

She was among 15 semi-finalists among the 50 competitors.

That means Blonigen, a sophomore at Eden Valley-Watkins High School, earned a $1,500 scholarship for winning the Department of Minnesota contest, another $700 for winning the District 7 contest. She receives $2,000 for participating in the national contest, and she receives another $2,000 scholarship for advancing to the group of 15.

The national winner was Emma Noble, a junior from Birmingham, Ala.

May is a time of elections at the Legion's post level

National Report

Bill Barbknecht

Thank you to all who took the time to listen to the National Commander Paul Dillard while he was in Minnesota.

Great job as always by Department Commander Tom Fernland, Membership Director Paul Hassing, Minnesota Legionnaire Editor Tim Engstrom and, of course, Adjutant Mike Maxa. It wasn't easy driving a van in those horrible winds during his visit.

As we go into May, we are having elections and installation of post officers. Are you proud of your post and its officers? Is it time for a change of command or is your current officers doing well? Yes or no to those questions can be remedied by attending your local post meeting this month of May for elections.

It is an honor to belong to The American Legion. You gave up so much to serve your country. We are a special organization as; you can't just say "Here is my $30 to $50, I want to join."

No, you gave up time away from family to be able to belong to The American Legion, to serve your community, state and nation. Please ask those veterans to join us. We need new ideas.

The National Executive Committee Spring Meetings are held the first week in May in Indianapolis.

Also, meeting is Youth Education, Child Welfare Foundation, Americanism Commission and other committee meetings.

Mother's Day is May 8. Is your post doing something special for mothers? Armed Forces Day is May 21. Three district conferences are on that day. See the calendar on Page 5.

Memorial Day is May 30. Have you reached out for a speaker at your program? Please teach adults and children alike Memorial Day is not just the start of summer or a long weekend.

Thank you for being a member of the American Legion Family. We are a family that does so much for the community, veterans and children.

As always, if I can be of any help, please call me at 218-770-6264. Donna and I look forward to seeing many of you throughout our summer activities.

Veterans impacted by affordable housing shortage

MACV has served veterans seeking housing stability for over 30 years. As the nongovernment leader in the fight to end veteran homelessness in Minnesota, we provide a wide-reaching, comprehensive network of staff and partners throughout the state.

The past two years have changed our world in more ways than we could ever predict. A pandemic, the call to do better on behalf of our neighbors of color, and a changing financial landscape have affected all of us. The affordable housing shortage has continued to build, contributing to a lack of accessibility for renters with less-than-ideal histories or other significant barriers to housing stability.

Sadly, many of the individuals most severely impacted by these changes are veterans. Hundreds of our brothers and sisters-in-arms have found themselves on the street, living in a car, or couch-surfing after losing their homes.

Inequity within Minnesota's veteran community contributes to this problem. When compared to Minnesota's overall veteran community, homeless veterans are far more likely to identify as non-white. Interestingly, the amount of disparity seen between the homeless and housing-stable veteran populations follow trends seen between homeless and housing-stable Minnesotans in general. In short, service in the military does not overcome the increased risk for housing instability noted in BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, People of Color) communities.

We use innovative strategies to empower veterans because no one who serves should wonder where they'll sleep tonight. Our team of 70 staff — roughly half of whom are veterans themselves — is talented, diverse and committed to our shared mission.

Many of us are looking to the future and wondering what 2022 holds. At MACV, we will continue to move veterans out of emergency housing in hotels to longer-term and stable housing situations. We will expand our outreach to shelters and unsheltered locations. We will forge new relationships with housing providers. We will continue to adapt to the evolving needs of those we serve.

MACV operates 151 beds of transitional and permanent supportive housing units in Duluth, Hibbing, Mankato, St. Cloud and throughout the Twin Cities metropolitan area. We have nine additional units coming online in April, and 24 starting construction with the goal of completion in 2022. Strong cross-sector partnerships between MACV and our government, philanthropy and corporate supporters directly resulted in these units.

The good news is that these innovative strategies to end veteran homelessness in Minnesota are working. St. Louis County has functionally ended veteran homelessness in its communities as of April 2022. This historic declaration means that we only have two more Continuums of Care remaining before Minnesota becomes the fourth state in the nation to declare the functional end to veteran homelessness.

Simply put, MACV could not do this important work without the support of veteran service organizations like local American Legion posts. Thank you for your support of our mission to end veteran homelessness in Minnesota.

Resolutions shape and alter The American Legion

By Paul Edwards
Training Committee

Congratulations! You can be proud of yourself. You have written a well-thought-out and properly put-together resolution. Now what?

For a resolution to do anything, it must go through a process of approval and sometimes that process can be simple and at other times very involved and complex. Some of the things that affect this complexity are the level in The American Legion of the author, the level at which the work of the resolved clause must be done, and lastly, what the resolution hopes to accomplish.

The level of the author in the Legion is also the first level of approval. If the author's involvement in the Legion is only at the post level, then the post membership must approve the resolution first, before moving it on.

Occasionally at Legion levels above the post, there is only one level of approval. An example of this from 2020 is during the COVID-19 shutdowns. The department judge advocate, who is a member of the Department Executive Committee, wrote the resolution to cancel the 2020 Department Convention. While the resolution itself was complicated due to all the things that had to be addressed for the cancelation and reschedule, the process of approval was simple.

A member of the Executive Committee was the author and presented it to the Executive Committee for approval. It had to go no further than that and if memory serves correctly, the whole process took less than a month.

That was a simple one. Let's get more complicated.

Let's say that Legionnaire Sally has written a resolution that, if approved, will clarify some wording in the National Constitution. Since Sally has chosen to keep her involvement in the Legion at the post level, that must be the first approval.

Once the resolution is approved by the post membership, the post adjutant will transmit the approved resolution to the district adjutant for processing and so on up the chain until it gets to the national adjutant.

At every level, Sally's resolution will be checked several times. Probably first by a resolutions committee who will look at form and content and then by a committee to make sure that it does not conflict with existing statutes.

At the national level it will be reviewed by more committees. Possibly the Internal Affairs Committee, the Americanism Committee, or the Constitution and By-Laws Committees. Eventually, if the stars align, Sally's Resolution will come to a vote on the convention floor.

The process in the first example was simple because everything occurred on one level. With Sally's resolution, what she wanted to do was simple, but the process was complex due to many levels of approval and changing the constitution is not a simple task.

Also note that while the first example took less than a month, the processing on Sally's resolution may take a year or more, depending on the timing of meetings, conferences and conventions.

In closing, write those resolutions. Keep in mind that not every resolution will be approved but even if your resolution is disapproved, you made the Legion Leadership think about your issue, if even for just for few minutes.

Is your post struggling to get Boys State boys?

Minn. Boys State

Neil Kruse

Enrollment should be in progress for the 2022 American Legion Minnesota Boys State session at St. John's University.

Pass on to schools www.mnboysstate.org, which has the registration application, as well as pictures from previous years.

Each of the tabs on the site can provide answers to questions potential delegates might have. Legionnaires, Boys State candidates and parents will find much information of interest on this site.

For those districts struggling to have delegates to sponsor, we invite a representative from the school (teacher, counselor, administrator) and Legion Post to visit one day during the week to see what a day in the life of a Boys Stater is like. We are looking forward to increased enrollment to this year's session from June 12 (registration) to 18 (awards). Friday night's program is open to guests.

Thank you for your interest and help in developing active civic-minded individuals throughout communities in Minnesota!

The SAL Update:

May showers bring squadron forms

By Shawn Davis
National Executive Committeeman

April showers bring May flowers.

But do you know what May brings?

Squadron elections and district conventions!

That means that we need each squadron to do their part in communication. We need this information to be able to properly communicate and keep everyone aware of what is happening in the organization!

First off, the newly elected squadron officers should complete a Squadron Officer Report form. These have been mailed to each squadron adjutant and are available on our website if you do not remember getting it. (mnsal.org/Home2/index.php/forms/). These forms should be fully completed yearly, even if there is no change in the officers or any other information from the prior year. These can be mailed or emailed to detachment.

Next complete the Squadron Data Report (SDR). Yes, the information is partially duplicative from the Squadron Officer Reporting Form. And, yes, it was due April 15.

But this is the information that national needs to update the Squadron Directory so members can find you, and renewal notices can be mailed out with the correct information. And with online renewals coming, this has to be completed to allow your members to renew online! So mail or email it in right away.

Finally complete the Consolidated Squadron Report (CSR). This is a form that needs to be completed every year, even if the squadron has “done nothing.” But I think every squadron in our great detachment has done or donated something, that can be logged on this form. This form is due at Detachment Convention June 25.

Once these forms are done, be glad that your squadron has taken its first steps on having done their part in communicating the squadron information to wrap up 2021-2022 and be ready to move forward with 2022-2023.

Our house rules: We do Legion Family

In our kitchen, and probably many kitchens around our state, hangs a sign with “House Rules.”

These rules can be anything from “We do hugs” or “We do real” or “We do fun” to these rules incorporating a Disney theme or Harry Potter theme or some other form that captures the spirit of the home and of the family.

But have we ever considered what this would look like if we were to have a sign for the Legion Family House Rules?

Perhaps, it would start something like, “We do helping veterans” or “We do fellowship” or even “We do community.” These are easy to come by when we’re facing outward — which, don’t get me wrong, is absolutely important. It can be hard or perhaps even overlooked to face inward and have “We do’s” that give inward support for our Legion Family.

I had the pleasure recently of being in the background, but observing nonetheless,

Membership Director

Matthew Verkuilen

the American Legion Auxiliary Juniors Conference held in Willmar. These young ladies came from all over the state and showed not only what leadership is, but that our Auxiliary is in very good hands in the future.

I’ve also had the honor of not only being a Boys State participant but a past counselor. As with our Auxiliary Juniors Program, the young men selected to Boys State (and the young women selected for Girls State) show us very profoundly that our organizations and our communities are in good hands — if we give them the chance to lead. And if we are there to support them along the way.

This leads us back to our “Legion House Rules.” If you’re finding your Legion Family getting stalled or becoming less active, perhaps a reinvestment is in order. Consider for a moment

these “Legion House Rules.”

First, we do helping veterans and their families, we do fellowship, we do promote the Auxiliary and Juniors (and their programs), we do promote the SAL and the Riders (and their programs).

We do find ways to include everyone in the Legion Family... and not just those that have been around the organization for several decades, but even the ones who may have only around for a single decade (or even less). We do work as a family (and we even recruit... as a family).

Matthew Verkuilen is the membership director for the Detachment of Minnesota for the Sons of The American Legion.

1st softball tourney to be in Mankato

MANKATO — Minnesota American Legion Softball and Mankato Post 11 are near to securing a location for the first state tournament.

Unless a meeting on April 29 goes awry, it will be July 30-31 in Mankato at Jaycee Park, with the players staying in dormitories at nearby Mankato State University. A banquet with coaches, players and parents will take place July 29.

Peggy Moon, the first female Department of Minnesota commander, will throw out the first pitch. Moon presently is Minnesota’s alternate on the National Executive Committee.

“I’m honored, I am just so honored,” she said after being asked to throw out the first pitch.

The first Minnesota American Legion Baseball State Tournament took place in Mankato, back in 1923.

Luann McMahan of Adams Post 146 is on the Minnesota American Legion Softball Committee, and she said the Mankato historical tie to Legion Baseball is part of the theme for the first Legion Softball tournament.

“We’re going back to Mankato, and this time, it’s for the girls,” she said.

The tournament will be an eight-team single elimination tournament. Because of consolation games, there will be 12 games total.

There are more details to come, McMahan said. The banquet speaker is close to being named, and the committee is working to arrange a flyover.

So far, 27 teams have registered to play Minnesota American Legion Softball.

To compare, North Carolina had 11 teams its first year kicking off Legion Softball. It now operates with more than 80 teams.

MACV, Rocks on Trucks win awards

ST. CLOUD — A St. Cloud area company and a St. Paul-based nonprofit have been recognized for employing veterans.

The American Legion Department of Minnesota Employment Committee has announced the winners of its annual Employer of Veterans Award.

In the small company category of 50 or fewer employees, Rock on Trucks Inc. of Waite Park was named the winner. The company has 42 employees and has five veterans on the staff.

Dennis Schiffler, commander of Waite Park Post 428, nominated Rocks on Trucks for the award.

In the medium company category, which is 51-200 employees, the Minnesota Assistance

Council for Veterans was named the winner. The nonprofit serves veterans statewide, providing housing, legal service and employment aid, and has workplaces in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, St. Cloud, Moorhead, Mankato and Rochester.

It has 67 employees, and 33 are veterans. Last year, it made 10 hires, and of those, six were veterans.

Tim Engstrom, adjutant of Bloomington Post 550, nominated MACV for the award.

Luis Campero, commander of Bloomington Post 550, chairs the Employment Committee. He said there were no nominees in the category for large companies.

Rocks on Trucks and MACV will be recognized at the Department Convention in July.

Claims offices partner with CVSOs

Your American Legion Claims Divisions, as of April 22, in Fargo and St. Paul are open for business and operational from initial claims to regular communication and support of County Veteran Service Offices to holding multi-point virtual Board of Veteran Appeals hearings.

We remain at the cutting edge of advocacy at a local, state, federal and national level. In previous segments you learned about the Minnesota Department of Veterans Affairs and American Legion Claims Division involvement in programs and operations.

Though times have changed some of the way we are providing advocacy, our mission remains the same. MDVA is the premium service provider you should expect. We have an exciting report on programs and progress made, developments and changes in office operations.

MDVA offices are open, and our business model has changed. MDVA is excited to announce our new approach to claims and appeals is based on a partnership and service approach including your local representative, the county veteran service officer (CVSO). When you select The American Legion or Minnesota Department of Veteran Affairs, you are choosing a premium service provider who will stand with you though the entire claims process and much more.

MDVA is taking a team approach to its mission and while working with your CVSO, any qualified person will have lifelong benefits available to them, including, yet not limited to, education, claims, outreach, homes, cemetery benefits and state benefits.

VA & Rehabilitation

In times of change, we also see time for opportunity. We have used this change in our business to seize the moment and make improvement where before change would have been more time consuming and or difficult.

As an example, in Fargo, the claims division was dependent on the federal technology network. While fitting staff with equipment to work from home, we modified the staff and moved them onto the state of Minnesota network making major improvements for them in doing so.

Another example, the VA’s Board of Veteran Appeals (BVA) was required to offer a modification to their hearing process. The BVA had been working with our Claims Division Offices to pilot a program called BVA Video Connect which allowed you, the claimant, to attend your BVA hearing virtually from your home or CVSO office of your choosing while still connecting with your power of attorney and the judge in Washington, D.C.

We are now one of the lead states participating in regular video connect BVA hearings, a means in which BVA’s hearings will continue indefinitely. We see this time, as difficult as it may be, as a way to make progress and continue to support you in the best way possible.

Thank you for placing your trust in our staff, in our ideas and in our offices. We will continue to press on and honor you for the service and sacrifice you provided our beautiful state and country.

We continue operations and are virtually open for business. Please contact your local county veteran service office or contact the American Legion Claims Division directly at 612-970-5662 if you are interested in any claims or benefits information.

I look forward to bringing you more information about our programs and the Claims Divisions on the ground for you every day.

Beer cans make history

Legion member in Rice crafts model planes out of aluminum

By Sarah Colburn
Sauk Rapids Herald

RICE — A Lockheed P-38 Lightning. A Grumman F4F Wildcat. A Vought F4U Corsair.

All planes of historic wars.

Each one hangs above the dining room of American Legion Post 473 in Rice; each one is intricately hand-crafted to its likeness out of beer cans.

The man behind the planes is Jim Larson, who served in the U.S. Air Force as a steam plant operator shoveling coal.

Every month or so, Larson, who has a modest cabin on the north end of Little Rock Lake, brings another new plane to the bar. Each one is displayed just above the bar for a month before moving to the dining room to make way for a new creation. On April 1 He brought his latest plane — a Japanese Zero — to Post 473.

"I'm a World War II buff; I love World War II history," he said. "Every time I watch a war movie, I think what it would have been like to be there. It's just the courage of that generation that really gets me, those men and women were awe inspiring."

Larson often has to rely on donated cans for his creations. Each plane takes 18 to 23 cans to create.

Larson gets the plans online and painstakingly maps out each specific piece, tracing the paper templates onto clear acrylic and then placing the clear template over the artwork on the can he wants to use. Marker in hand, he traces each piece and cuts the aluminum with a scissors.

Each plane takes a few weeks to design and create. He uses a combination of two-part epoxy, double-sided tape, hot glue and staples to assemble the pieces. The process is slow, meaning he can only add a few pieces at a time before he has to wait for the glue to set, returning to the plane later or the next day to do a little more.

Larson built a Wildcat out of Natural Light cans, taking special care to affix the eagle on the can to both sides of the tail. The red, white and blue colors of the can give it a patriotic flair.

"It's my way of expressing my art talent," he said.

Replicas of a British Spitfire (from left), Japanese Zero and Grumman F4F Wildcat are finished products of Jim Larson's. Larson uses aluminum beverage cans to create the models, using the can design or painting the material to achieve the look he desires.

Jim Larson crafts planes out of beer cans, often choosing them for their artistic elements rather than the beer that is inside. Tabs from beer can tops are layered to create the engines of the models.

This Curtiss P-40 Warhawk is made from Rolling Rock cans.

Larson said he has always had an engineering aptitude, and to that end, his art is very detailed, even the cartoons and drawings he creates.

With the planes, he focuses on the color and look of the can more than the beer inside. He can be found frequenting more upscale liquor stores as he hunts for import cans that create the color and look he wants to achieve. On occasion, he paints the cans, but most often, he leaves them in their true form.

Larson started building the planes in the mid-2000s and has roughly 10 hanging at the Legion at a time, bringing them home once they have had their run. So far, he has made 16 planes of 54 available designs. He has gifted them on occasion to relatives and once to a veteran who flew planes in World War II, Korea and Vietnam. He met the veteran when he accompanied him on an Honor Flight to Washington.

Larson himself is a 20-year member of the Rice American Legion Honor Guard and is also a member of the Patriot Guard Riders, a nonprofit organization known for holding flags at veterans' funerals and protecting mourners from possible harassment. He often wears his Patriot Guard vest while with the American Legion Honor Guard.

Larson has always had an affinity for planes. He took private pilot lessons at the St. Cloud Regional Airport in the early 1990s; he never received his pilot's license. He also flew an ultralight powered parachute for nearly a decade. His father was a tank commander in Okinawa in World War II, and though he said his dad never talked much about the experience, he had a shoebox filled with historic photos.

Today, Larson can list off details of many planes from memory, which one was most powerful, which one dominated the skies and which was the most agile along with strengths and weaknesses.

For him, it is a way to help keep the history alive and honor those who have served.

A German ME 262 is in production at Jim Larson's home. The plane was the only jet fighter used in World War II, and it is the first jet plane model produced by Larson.

Jim Larson hangs a model of a Japanese Zero at the front of the bar inside Rice Post 473 on April 1. The plane is Larson's newest work of art and will be displayed by itself for one month before being transferred to the dining area.

Adams post raising funds for tornado victims

The building became the location for donating goods. That Thursday afternoon, people from surrounding communities were bringing clothes, shoes, food, water, baby needs, toys, coats, toiletries, you name it, to the post home at 132 W. Main St.

On Friday, the Post 146 Legion Family did it again. They served fish and brats, and after they ran out, they served chicken. The people of Taopi filled the Legion that evening to get away and relax. On Saturday, the Auxiliary again served soup to Taopi residents, and everyone hung out at the Legion again that evening.

"This shows our community how important the Legion is," Lewison said.

The tornado was reported to be about 320 yards wide and lasting for seven miles.

Lewison said Taopi residents have been coming to

A soup lunch for Taopi residents begins to be served at Post 146.

Post 146 to pick up supplies. "They were overwhelmed but now are getting back into their own lifestyle," he said.

The donations came from other Legion posts, local stores and individuals.

First District Commander Mike Parry called about helping veterans, and posts from around the district sent $2,535 to help veterans impacted by the tornado. Post 146 even got a check from Nebraska.

Lewison said individuals can donate to their efforts.

Send a check to: American Legion Post 146 PO Box 181 Adams, MN 55909

In the memo line, put "Taopi Relief Fund" to help all tornado victims or put "Taopi Relief Fund for Legion Family" to specifically help Legion Family members affected by the tornadoes.

The Legionnaire checked with the Allied Charities and the Gambling Control Board. Posts cannot send gambling funds, but they can send in Form LG 270 to have the state board review, at its June meeting, a request to donate to another licensed post.

Another option is to purchase merchandise (not cash or gift cards), then send that.

Lewison said many homes in Taopi will need rebuilding, and there is talk about the Post 146 Family furnishing the new homes with flags and flagpoles. That, he said, is a discussion for the next meeting.

Let's hope the drive home from that one has clear skies.

Focus group says staffing a Vet Center has a catch earned, including mental health care when they come home," said Minnesota Gov. Tim Walz in the news release. "This new Vet Center outstation reflects our strong commitment to expanding services to veterans here in Minnesota."

Vet Centers provide hassle-free and confidential counseling for trauma-impacted veterans and their families, including members of the National Guard and their families. They are particularly important for veterans who want to get counseling but not have it on their permanent VA health record.

Vet Centers are under the federal VA funding umbrella but operate separately from the VA Healthcare System.

The outstations are not full-fledged Vet Centers, but they are satellites where at least one full-time counselor can provide services at no cost. As demand increases, the services could expand into a full Vet Center, according to a joint news release from the state and federal VAs.

The announcement of an outstation comes after state officials, from the governor on down, joined the Legion in recent years in its efforts to expand Vet Centers.

In December 2019, other veterans organizations joined the Legion on this issue through their participation in the Minnesota Commanders' Task Force.

Legion members Phil Ringstrom, Tom Mullon, Tommy Johnson and Tim Engstrom comprise a focus group that has worked with the Minnesota Department of Veterans Affairs staff on the effort. Mullon is the past director of the Minneapolis VA Medical Center. Ringstrom is a former staff nurse, nurse manager and staff assistant at the St. Cloud VA Medical Center and, during his VA career, was a team leader for Vet Centers in Sioux Falls and Duluth.

(To be upfront, Engstrom is the editor of this publication, and he also has a role in legislative advocacy for veterans.)

Ringstrom pointed out that the downside of the announcement is the new St. Cloud Vet Center Outstation likely won't be operational until 2024. The VA must go through locating, procurement, leasing and hiring.

"I hear there is no additional FTE, and we have to prove the value of adding more staff," he said. "It's a Catch-22 again."

FTE stands for full-time equivalent, a reference to budgeting staff. The Catch-22 is: How will veterans know the counseling exists if there is no marketing of it?

Ringstrom appreciates the support of the governor and MDVA.

The VA, he said, calls the state's involvement in the effort "political pressure, but the fact is it is not political. It is reality. It is what we see exist, and, as for The American Legion, it is our job to serve veterans and explain to the government where the problems are."

He noted how the VA itself began because The American Legion pointed out to the federal government the lack of care for wounded World War I veterans.

"It is absolutely wrong to call this political pressure," he said.

In the meantime, veterans in the St. Cloud area needing readjustment counseling can call 763-503-2220.

Engstrom noted how long it has taken.

"Many combat soldiers coming back to Minnesota started telling us they had problems to resolve way back in 2005. They even told us they needed counseling. The counseling will begin happening 19 years after the problem first surfaced," he said. "This outstation is good news, but how long it has taken for our nation to respond is sad news."

2 Veteran Walls of Honor go up in southeastern Minnesota

WABASHA — Memorials honoring local veterans are now permanently displayed at Gundersen St. Elizabeth's Care Centers. Last month two Veterans Walls of Honor, which recognize 15 veterans including three World War II veterans, were unveiled. The display, originated and partially-funded by Gundersen St. Elizabeth's Hospital and Clinics, is wholeheartedly supported by the Wabasha American Legion, Legion Auxiliary and VFW posts.

"This is a way we can support those who sacrificed so much for this country," said Diane Ties, Recreation Therapy Manager at Gundersen St. Elizabeth's. Ties managed the veterans project. "We hope these memorials remain a visual reminder to honor and recognize our veterans, service members of the U.S. Armed Forces and their families."

Veterans like 96-year-old resident Paul Klees. Klees was part of the Battle of Okinawa in 1945.

"Being a veteran is a shared experience. It's something that we went through together," Klees said. "There's camaraderie in coming together."

As Ties handed Klees his photo and certificate during the Dec. 15 ceremony, tears filled his eyes.

"All the hard work we put into this Wall of Honor was for that moment," said Ties. "This project – and that moment – went right to my heart."

Long-term care administrator Kristi Petersen and hospital administrator Jim Root were present at the unveiling.

"Our team is honored to serve you and are forever grateful for all that you gave," said Petersen.

Root echoed that. "We are proud and honored to care for those who sacrificed so much to serve our country."

Gundersen St. Elizabeth's Care Center holds a VA contract. Currently 12 veterans live at Gundersen St. Elizabeth's Care Center-Shields Avenue and three reside at Gundersen St. Elizabeth's Care Center-Grant Boulevard.

"It's so important for us to support, honor and remember the veterans who served our country," said Catherine Gallenberger, commander, Wabasha American Legion Post 50. "I'm thankful that we can be a part of this project and legacy."

Rosi Schmidt, president of the Wabasha American Legion Auxiliary Unit 50, said the Auxiliary is also proud and excited to be a part of this venture.

Schmidt helped involve the Auxiliary, Legion and VFW who then donated to this tribute to veteran residents at the health care centers.

Charles Childs flew in two wars and counseled the young

By Gary Kass

TRACY — Charles LeRoy Childs was born in Arnegard, N.D., on July 17, 1920, the third of five children born to Adela and Henry Childs.

Henry was a barber and owned a pool hall. Ever inquisitive, Charles Childs was fascinated with flight and music from a very young age. He learned to play the drums at age 8 and was playing in local bands by 12.

Born into the Roaring '20s, he remembered, "Everybody had money, then the Depression came, the banks closed and nobody had any money."

At 14, disgusted with the hard times and ever curious, he hopped a freight train to California looking for work. Much to his parent's chagrin, he did the same thing each summer for the next two years.

Infuriated, his father signed him up for the Civilian Military Training Camps that convened each summer in Bismarck, N.D. The CMTC was a program by the War Department from 1921 to 1940 orientating young men to military service without a military obligation.

Childs enjoyed the CMTC, playing the drums in the base band, but wanderlust soon came again, and he was enticed to join a carnival band. Persuaded by the carnival's band director, his father agreed to release him from the CMTC.

He was touring the country until his mother, Adela, became quite ill. He jumped a freight train and arrived at his mother's bedside just before she passed.

Newly responsible, he joined the North Dakota National Guard's 164th Infantry Regiment and attended Mayville State Teachers College, in Mayville N.D., from 1938 until the Guard was mobilized in February 1941.

After mobilization, the Guard units from the Midwest were sent to the Louisiana Maneuvers. The Louisiana Maneuvers, August to September 1941 was the largest military training exercise conducted by the US since World War I. The maneuvers covered a wide area in western Louisiana that included Fort Polk and Camp Claiborne.

There, Childs volunteered to train with the Army Air Corps. After rigorous testing, Childs was selected for pilot training. From November 1941 to July 1942, he was trained as a B-17 pilot and commissioned on July 3, 1942. The next day (the Fourth of July), he married his longtime college girlfriend, Grace Saueressig, a teacher from North Dakota.

Childs was sent to Montgomery, Ala., to train British pilots to fly the B-17 Flying Fortress. Released from AAF Training Command, he was sent to the 15th Army Air Forces in Italy.

With a B-17 and crew he was sent to an Amendola AAF Base near Foggia, Italy. (Built in 1931, Amendola Air

Then he became a probation officer for the South Dakota Judicial System.

Childs said given his rough-and-tumble youth, he was quick to correct juvenile offenders in their errant ways. When asked about how he felt about his service, he quickly responded, "Best thing that ever happened to me."

Daughter Cara died in 1999, son Charles died in 2010. Due to failing health Charles and Grace moved to Tracy, in southwest Minnesota, to be near their two surviving children, Candy and Connie, who live near Storden.

A lifetime member of The American Legion with Tracy Post 173, he is an inspiration to many and one of those

As Childs puts it, "I flew 37 missions out of Italy — to Germany, clear up to Poland."

Childs said: "I had some tough missions; my engineer was killed; my co-pilot, my radio operator and one of my waist gunners were seriously wounded."

Childs won two Distinguished Flying Crosses for his intrepid leadership on dangerous combat missions.

Childs said that he was often the "lead" in his group, meaning that he flew first and his bombardier determined when the rest of the group would drop their bombs. He flew two extra flights called "Lone Wolf" sorties. Such missions were flown by a single B-17, at night using radar to bomb strategic enemy targets.

smooth-running, almost clock-like operation. This increased the daily tonnage so much so as to meet all the needs of the citizens of Berlin. So efficient had the airlift become that, after 13 months, the Russians reopened the land corridors to Berlin.

Returning to the States, Childs shuttled aircraft around the country until he was sent to Japan to fly supply flights to U.N. Forces in the Korean War. This time, Childs was able to take his family and they stayed in Japan for three years.

In this war, Childs flew the C-119 Flying Boxcar.

"I dropped supplies and paratroopers. We flew over enemy territory and dropped them (paratroopers). I didn't like that because I knew where they were going."

That would be into combat.

Childs won the Bronze Star for his service in Korea.

National Commander Paul Dillard speaks at St. Paul Arcade-Phalen Post 577 on April 11.

Nat'l cmdr. says Congress needs to pass Honoring Our PACT Act

Building, also at Fort Snelling.

Media turned out to hear Dillard during stops at Dodge Center, Owatonna, Austin, Blue Earth, Fairmont, Brewster and Pipestone.

Dillard described how The American Legion is trying to get congressional recognition for a National Buddy Check Week.

He said a judge should decide whether veterans who have received mental health counseling have a right to own a gun, not an unelected bureaucrat.

And Dillard called on the Senate to pass the Honoring Our PACT Act, which expands VA health care to veterans who were exposed to toxic substances by allowing the presumption of a service connection. This is the burn pit legislation the Legion spearheads.

"We know they got cancer and respiratory problems. They need health care," Dillard said. "The federal government wrote the check over 20 years ago. It's time to cash that check."

In 1996, the VA, after Legion-led efforts, waived the means test for World War I and Spanish-American War veterans. Dillard wants the VA to do the same now for the remaining WWII veterans, so they can get VA health care without having to provide tax returns.

"There are less than 322,000 around. It's time for to pass that. [Past National Commander] Dan Ludwig every year asks about it," Dillard said. "We don't tell them what to do. We try to give them enough information so they can make the right decision."

The Legion wants the VA to have more female-veteran-oriented facilities, such as mammogram machines and maternity care. About 11 percent of military veterans are women.

The American Legion paid $1.25 million to Coast Guard members rank E-5 and down, and to their families, during the government shutdown in 2019. They hadn't been paid because the Coast Guard is under Homeland Security and not Department of Defense.

The Legion, Dillard said, would like Congress to pass the Pay Our Coast Guard Act to rectify the situation.

He said today's young veterans are do-ers, and they like to be active. He called on posts to offer them involvement with baseball, or else to hold activities such as cornhole leagues, 5-kilometer runs, or wherever their interests lie, like with helping their communities after storm damage.

"A post will be as successful as a community allows it to be. A community will be as successful as a post will be," Dillard said.

He said Minnesota is about 6,600 members shy of the goal. He pointed how about 5,400 members did not renew in the past year.

Department of Minnesota Membership Director Paul Hassing said young people have a reputation of not being joiners, but he said they are. They are do-ers.

"The younger veterans are the future of The American Legion, whether they join or not," Hassing said.

He called on officers at Legion posts to shift every year or two.

"If you are a commander for five, 10 or 15 years, don't you think it's about time to raise another one up to fill your shoes? It's your job to find your replacement."

Dillard's National Commander's Project is a fundraiser for the American Legion Veterans & Children Foundation, some of which was used for paying the Coast Guard. The foundation provides support to military and veteran parents in unexpected financial crises. There is an effort to replenish and grow it over the next decade.

Dillard is hoping to raise $2 million during his one-year term. Posts in Minnesota donated $27,000 to the American Legion Veterans & Children Foundation and the National Emergency Fund during the tour.

Any Legion posts wishing to donate can mail a check made out to "American Legion Veterans & Children Foundation" to:

The foundation is a 501(c)3, with zero spent on administration or employees. The EIS is 35-6039680. Under Minnesota law, charitable gambling funds may be used.

Since the foundation began in 1925, it has provided $76 million in aid to military members, veterans and their families.

"That's just the way we are," Dillard said.

The incredible story of the marker at Fort Snelling for Dennis Hoff

Guest Column

Milt Bellin

Dennis Wayne Hoff and I met when we both entered high school in 1963. He as a freshman and me as a sophomore.

We became friends while being German language lab partners for multiple years. I knew Dennis to be a kind and reserved gentleman.

When I later learned that he had become a medical corpsman in the Army, it seemed to be very fitting with his personality. He had also earned his silver wings as a member of the 101st Airborne Division.

I saw his obituary in the Minneapolis paper in the spring of 1968 and learned he had been killed in Vietnam. He was only 18 years old.

As years went by, my father-in-law was interred at the Fort Snelling National Cemetery, having served in the Army in the European Theater of Operations during World War II and then 20 years in Navy Air.

When we started to visit his site on Memorial Days, we then looked up the location of my grandparents. My grandfather was a World War I veteran. We would also seek out Dennis Hoff. We then visited and left flowers at each of those markers each year. We later added others, such as our next-door neighbor of 40 years, who had flown in B-29s in the Pacific during World War II.

About eight years ago, there was a feature article in the Minneapolis paper about the Faces Never Forgotten Project, which was an effort to obtain pictures and information about Vietnam War casualties to be included in a virtual wall, as an adjunct to The Wall in Washington. The name Dennis Hoff was right there on the front page.

I checked with another former classmate, who still volunteers at the high school, and verified the 1967 yearbook could be viewed in the school library, and it had Dennis's high school senior picture. I telephoned Herb Reckinger, who was featured as a contact and spearhead of the Never Forgotten Project, and told him I knew Dennis Hoff, and how he could get a copy of his picture. That picture is now included in the Virtual Wall, and based on a recent conversation with Mr. Reckinger, I believe the project was successful in getting pictures of all who had been from Minnesota. Much appreciation is due to Mr. Reckinger and the Never Forgotten Project team.

With Dennis then being searchable online, I found other sites which had information on him and on decorations he had received while a PFC in Vietnam, including two Silver Stars, the second one being awarded as a Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster, and for the actions resulting in about Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who himself had quite a military history. A book he wrote was titled "Skyward." It is a great book for anyone interested in the early history of naval aviation.

Well, Byrd was awarded the Medal of Honor for his flight over the North Pole, and his marker, which looks just like the ones at Fort Snelling, had "Medal of Honor" boldly across the front. That piqued my interest again in the marker of Dennis Hoff.

After trying many new avenues with limited progress, I found the answer in the small print. It turned out the creators of the rules had the wisdom to leave an opening for a case like that of Dennis. It allowed that an officer of a congressionally chartered veterans service organization could make a request! I knew such a person!

Tom Schottenbauer is the service officer at the St. Louis Park American Legion, Post 282, and I have known him for many years. I asked Tom if he would consider submitting a form to alter the marker stone and properly honor Dennis. He agreed that it should be done.

Very soon I learned that the marker stone for Dennis would be altered to include the Silver Star designation. Jeremy Wolfsteller, service officer for the American Legion Department of Minnesota, had completed an order that the stone for Dennis Wayne Hoff be redone.

I understand that Sammi Korinek at the Fort Snelling National Cemetery is making arrangements for the redone stone, and has agreed to add the Silver Star citations to the Veteran's Legacy Memorial entry for Dennis.

Many thanks to Tom, Jeremy, and Sammi for a very meaningful endeavor.

It is a fitting honor for Dennis Wayne Hoff, a true hero.

Minneapolis resident Milt Bellin is not a veteran but was friends with Hoff in school.

him being KIA. The citations for those awards can be found at:

- valor.militarytimes.com.
- Remembrances can also be found at VVMF.org, the Wall of Faces.
- Other decorations can be found at honorstates.org.

The marker stone for Dennis only included PH for Purple Heart, so I made contacts to see if Silver Star could be added. I kept hearing that only a family member could make a request, and, after searching, I was not aware of any surviving family. I was later reading two books

Please remember all veterans that are now serving with the Most Holy Supreme Commander this Memorial Day.

In the past, I commented on listening to the veteran, not just hearing their story. I recently learned about LASSIE. I think it is very beneficial in Buddy Checks and conversing with any veteran.

Remember we're not "selling" memberships; we're offering our services to the veteran. As the national commander indicated, in his southern Minnesota tour, we are here to assist "all" veterans, not just members or those who choose to be members.

LASSIE consists of:
Listen (learning by listening): Every person primarily connects and communicates with their head, as in the intellectual thinker; with their heart, as in the sympathetic individual; or with their hands, as in the doer.

Ask (asking in order to listen): Ask meaningful questions that require more than a yes or no answer and engage the veteran into a conversation to make them more comfortable.

Seek (finding a point of connection): Discovering what is happening in the veteran's life, which in turn will spur more discussion.

Share (speaking about the American Legion Four Pillars): From your previous questions, the veteran has indicated which pillar that most interests them.

Invite (appeals to the veteran): The veteran is going to be most open to the invitation that appeals to the head, heart, or hands; which will have the veteran become involved using his assets.

Encourage (follow up and follow through): In what concrete ways can you extend encouragement to the veteran considering timing, tact and assets.

Remember every veteran has served our country and deserves our assistance; whether honorable, general, or dishonorable discharges. Start the conversation!

"Oh, the days dwindle down to the precious few September, November And these few precious days I'll spend with you"

Lyrics from the song "September Song" was released in 1950 (the year I was born) by Earl Wind and later were hit songs for Frank Sinatra, Willie Nelson, Sara Vaughan, Jimmy Durante and Ella Fitzgerald among others. The song in general speaks to the loves of one's youth. But the songs best remembered words are those from above.

As we approach these "few precious days" of our mature life, we assign high value to our partners in these golden years, as well as those personal victories and civic contributions. So here is the rub — I take umbrage with the stereotype description of the Legion Hall as a bunch of old soldiers boozing it up and talking about "the wars."

I have spent my share of hours at Legion posts, but the few war stories I have heard were about heroics of others — not themselves. Most of the stories I heard were about past commanders and influencers within the Legion at the post level but also expressed pride in their post members that went on to district-level positions.

So consider those "precious days" and ask yourself: How will I spend them?

More on this at our 3rd District Convention May 20-22 in Forest Lake.

A large part of this column is taken from an American Legion Veterans Affairs & Rehabilitation Division publication titled "From Crisis to Confidence," dated May 2015.

In 2014 a national crisis emerged in the way the VA was serving our veterans. The VA Inspector General's Office substantiated claims that as many as 40 veterans in Arizona died waiting for medical appointments while their names languished on a secret list.

It was not just a Phoenix problem. The American Legion went to work with the VA to turn around the crisis in the health-care and benefits systems.

American Legion and VA efforts have provided help from both American Legion service officers and from VA personnel to ensure the VA mission of timely, adequate care and support for those who served our nation in uniform.

Millions of dollars in overdue, retroactive VA benefits have been paid to veterans. Doctor appointments have been moved up. Homeless veterans have found resources to help them. Moreover, The American Legion is helping VA obtain a firsthand understanding of the real issues their patients and benefits applicants are facing.

The American Legion continues to be here to assist all veterans obtain services from the VA. Veterans should contact their post or district service officer. Also available to help are VA&R Benefits Coordinator Sarah Schlicht (who can be reached at 612-970-5402 or ssturner@mnlegion.org) and Department Service Officer Jeremy Wolfsteller (who can be reached at 612-467-3849 or jwolfsteller@mnlegion.org).

Still serving, serving veterans and serving our communities!

Hello District 7!

Our district includes 75 Legion posts; some with post homes but most meeting at hometown facilities like fire halls, community centers, etc.. (Only 14 have a bar/restaurant). Each post has developed its own traditions and activities. Our hope, however, is these traditions or activities support The American Legion's Four Pillars.

These pillar activities often include hosting local blood drives, helping present flags or perform patriotic presentations in their local schools, supporting other youth programs, helping veterans (especially deployed veterans and our aging veterans), honor guards and volunteering for local community programs.

Sadly, some posts are approaching what some call "Last Man Standing" status. They no longer hold meetings, seek out new members, engage with other local veterans, participate in local events, etc. and membership dwindles as they lose them to Post Everlasting. It's never too late!

Revitalization, and Buddy Check programs are available to help — but they only work if the post wants to turn things around. Contact your district representatives if you'd like to talk about these programs.

I hope you all had a happy Easter with family and friends. The 21-22 membership year is coming close to the end, let's get out and find the few that are procrastinating.

The Great Eighth is in third place, so if we find a few more we may make it to the top 100 percent of goal. Thanks for your help.

This month is new or holdover officer voting month. Please look into being an officer for a year. It is not that hard. I have been an officer for 19 years in one way or another. In the post, I have been all positions and committees. Same for the district.

I have been a Boys State counselor for 14 years. At the department level, I have been a vice commander and was on the Americanism Committee for 14 years. If I can handle this on a part-time basis, so can some others. If retired, get involved with the Legion. I do not regret starting one bit. Meeting fellow veterans and talking is great.

Americanism is honoring our American flag by saluting, uncovering when appropriate and much more. Telling a service person "thank you for serving" be it a military, local police or a medical EMT. All this is honoring Americanism.

By sending our youth to Boys State or Girls State teaches them that service to a political system is how our government works, by enacting laws and obeying laws whether we agree or not. Thoughtfulness to an older veteran is also needed in this era of COVID. Many of the

10th District William Gordon

Greetings Mighty 10th District. I want to address with you several items this month. They are:

1. Suicides.

The 2021 National Veteran Suicide Report states that 45,861 happen this past year and of those 6,261 were veterans. Yet more women attempt suicide than men. In most western countries there is a "gender paradox" for suicide: Women have more suicidal ideation than men and attempt suicide three to four times as often as men, but men are three-and-a-half times more likely to kill themselves.

We all know veterans and their family members who were very active in our posts. Then they are taken ill and after our service officer or chaplain has checked in on them once or twice and reported back it's on to business as usual. There are many reasons a person commits suicide. One is isolation. This one we can all help to stop. All it takes is making a telephone call or stopping by for a few minutes during your month to visit with someone. For example, have you ever not seen your parents or grandparents not feel so happy when you come to visit or bring the grandchildren?

Our brothers and sisters who have served with us need that visit, too. Try this, the next time you are out doing errands, add 30 minutes more to your schedule by stopping by and visiting a fellow veteran or veteran family member. I will guarantee you that visit will be one of the most rewarding experiences of your life.

2. Membership.

Only you can increase our membership. That's right you. You can talk to other veterans, inform them of our organization, welcome new veterans to your community and let your communities know what your post is doing.

This can be done in many ways, for example through your personal communications with other veterans, newsletters, Facebook posts, Next Door application posts, your personal and other organizational websites, at a city council, county board and any other meetings you attend.

Remind everyone that The American Legion is still serving the needs of veterans or our fellow veterans in our communities. You as a member of the Legion, Auxiliary, SAL, Riders, Juniors and the 40&8 are the most important part of our organization!

Teamwork is dream work.

3. Consolidated Post Report.

Please reach out to your local adjutant, secretary, recorder. Email them. Text message them. Write them a letter. Call them. Let them know what you are doing so they can complete the Post CPR report or End of Year report or whatever it's called.

That information and our numbers are so important to our organization to maintaining the benefits our fellow veterans and veterans' family members have earned.

May is a time for poppies and for electing officers

President's Column

Patti Coleman

May is Poppy Month, the time of the year the American Legion Family traditionally distributes poppies in our communities to remember those who have paid the ultimate sacrifice in service to our country.

Please wear your poppy with pride. Remember to distribute poppies at your Memorial Day services to honor our fallen heroes. Please review the rules on how poppy funds can be used before making any monetary distributions. It is imperative that they are used appropriately.

Many units are electing their new officers to serve for 2022-2023 this month. Have you volunteered to hold a position in your unit? Our units are re-awakening and need members to take active roles in leadership, administration and mission delivery. If your skill set fits, jump in, and make a difference.

Remember to take the time to install your new officers. It isn't required that they be installed into their offices, though it will make them feel special. All our ALA volunteers should be made to feel special anytime we get the opportunity. Kindness costs nothing.

Our 10 district presidents have been working hard for us all year. Reward their service by planning now to attend your district convention. This is where the decisions are made for your district, where you can take an active role in making changes and you elect your new leadership. This is also where units can share their achievements, exchange ideas and receive recognition for excellent mission delivery for our veterans, active military, their families, children and youth and in your communities.

Legion Family members are needed to participate in the Work & Play Weekend at Legionville May 20-22. At Work & Play, members volunteer to get the spring cleaning done, both indoors and outdoors, to get Legionville ready for campers this summer. If you are available, please just show up at Legionville to lend a hand. You can stay in the dorms or bring your own camper. Many hands make light work.

It's hard to believe that our membership year is winding down and our job is not done yet! Please make that extra effort to contact those who have not renewed their membership for 2022. Many may have just overlooked it. Others may have feedback to share that our organization can benefit from.

They may just be waiting for that personal contact, a phone call or knock at the door, so they know that they matter to us and to our veterans. Membership is the job of every member, not just those doing the admin work to get it processed. Every member is needed and appreciated if we are to be successful in our mission.

Thank you to the many units who have been pushing forward and making gains each week and those of you at 100 percent. Well done.

Congratulations to our Honorary Junior President Ashley Stai on a very well-led Department Junior Conference on April 9. I was beaming with pride as the day progressed and was honored to conduct your graduation ceremony into senior membership. Elected to serve as Honorary Junior President for 2022-2023 was Sydney Borntreger from the 2nd District. The Juniors will have a fantastic year under her leadership. Many thanks are extended to the 7th District American Legion Auxiliary and Willmar Unit 167 for hosting a great conference for our younger members.

I want to express my sincere gratitude to my unit, Lino Lakes Unit 566, for hosting a wonderful testimonial dinner in my honor, and thank the members who attended. The evening will be one of those memories I will cherish for the rest of my days. Few are honored in such a way, and I am humbled. Thank you.

Patti Coleman of Lino Lakes Unit 566 is the president of the American Legion Auxiliary Department of Minnesota.

Conference in Willmar welcomes 45 Juniors

WILLMAR — The 58th annual Department Junior Conference was held on Saturday, April 9, hosted by the 7th District at Willmar American Legion Post 167.

Honorary Department Junior Ashley Stai did an outstanding job of running the conference. There were 33 units represented with 45 Junior members and 54 Senior members and American Legion Family guests for a total of 95 attendees.

The Juniors had a fun Friday evening with great food and lots of fun activities including dancing thanks to the 7th District.

Junior members had the opportunity to participate in four poppy contests. It was so difficult to choose the winners because there were three tables full of entries.

Junior members also had the opportunity to hear about her President Ashley's project from Jon Lovald at MACV and how the impact of our junior members touches important lives. A surprise grant in the amount of $2,500 was presented to both President Ashley and Department President Patti Coleman for their respective projects by Tim Burley from Saluting Community Heroes.

Honorary Junior President Ashley Stai leads the conference while Secretary Eva Burket takes notes.

Hutchinson's Tim Burley, right, donates $2,500 to Coleman and Stai for their projects. The funds come from Hutchinson's Saluting Community Heroes fundraiser.

There is a drive to get former members to rejoin

By Linda Kelly
Membership Chairman

A membership challenge was announced at the Appreciation Rally in Forest Lake. I am calling it the "We Miss You Calls" as I am asking every unit to make a call to all of their unpaid members.

If you are lucky enough not to have many unpaid members, please go one step further and call unpaid members from prior years. If you really want to go the extra mile, check out your post's membership to see what spouses, daughters and granddaughters don't belong to the ALA. (Don't forget to check the female veterans to see if they belong!)

Since the Appreciation Rally, we received notice that the National Membership Team that they are hosting a Rejoin Campaign, with the slogan of "Spring into Action." By the time you are reading this, their staff will have sent out a "We Miss You" email to former members with email addresses. So now it is really important that you make calls to those from prior years to see if you can get them to rejoin.

The National Office will be tracking the number of re-joined members for each Department through April 20 and the winning department will be recognized at the 2022 National Convention in Milwaukee.

Remember to get your memberships sent into the Department Office on a regular basis.

Don't forget this is a unit challenge. Your membership chairman needs all of us to help. Volunteer to make some of those calls.

A reminder to all units that Annual Report forms are due on or before April 15. Please send the entire collection of reports back together as a unit batch. The reports should cover anything done in your unit between April 1, 2021, and March 31, 2022. This year, especially, it is important for each unit to report anything that was accomplished.

COVID has had two effects.

It either shut units down completely or it motivated our members to find different ways to carry out our mission outside of our comfort zone. Even if you think that your unit didn't do much, you probably did something. Don't forget to complete the one-page Impact Report as well.

If your unit truly didn't do any activities, please do not forget to complete your listing of deceased members for the year.

May is Poppy Month; there are lots of resources

By Lynn Carr
Poppy Chairman

It's time to prepare for National Poppy Day on May 27. Try to plan an event for this special day. Advertise so people know about it. Don't forget to promote it on your social media, reach out to your local media outlets and include it in your post home newsletter and more!

Other resources are available to help you promote your American Legion Family National Poppy Day events and activities such as banners and posters. If you have questions on how poppy funds can be used, we encourage you to watch a recording of the ALA Academy webinar Using Poppy Funds to Serve Our Mission.

The Department Office has assured me poppy sales to units and posts are strong this year! Keep up the good work. A great way to honor our veterans is to distribute our red poppies and tell why you are a member of the American Legion Auxiliary. Units are allowed to cross departments if a location is desirable to units for poppy distribution.

Did you know that ALA Poppy has a Facebook page? <https://www.facebook.com/groups/ALAPoppy>. This is a closed group so you have to request permission to join. You then have to answer two questions to be approved: 1. Are you a member of the ALA? and 2. What is your unit and department?

Did you know that National has a blog? The blog features excellent info and photos that can be easily shared. No log-in required!

<https://member.legion-aux.org/Blog>. Some poppy resources that might be helpful are located on the National website Poppy Committee Section

There will be two poppy contests at the Department Convention in July.

Contest 1: Poppy Wreath Contest

Rules: Must use Department President Patti Coleman's theme "Honoring Tradition – Evolving to Endure" and the poppy.

Contest 2: Basket or Can Decorated for Units to Use on Poppy Day

Rules: Must use Department President Patti Coleman's theme "Honoring Tradition – Evolving to Endure" and the poppy.

Both contests are open to all Auxiliary members. All entries must include a card in an envelope containing your name, unit number, district number and location.

Small or large poppies may be used with the white tags removed. Voting for People's Choice will be by donation, with the funds going to the Department President's Project. Those who choose to donate their entries may do so and it will be donated to a veteran.

Time for an Gift Shop update

By Sue Nunnelee and Suzette Maluchnik
Gift Shop Committee

Once again, the units of the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Minnesota stepped up to provide good cheer and gifts for veterans who were confined to VA Health Care facilities or in Minnesota Veteran Homes throughout the state during the holiday season.

Working with coordinators and ALA representatives, we served approximately 1,400 veterans and 500 family members/caregivers in four VA locations (Minneapolis, St. Cloud, Sioux Falls and Fargo) and five Veteran Homes (Silver Bay, Luverne, Minneapolis, Hastings and Fergus Falls).

Although, most of our volunteers were not allowed in, we did work with their staff to make sure everyone was remembered and received an appropriate gift. Funds were also given to provide a "party" or treat to help celebrate.

A huge thank you to all the ALA reps, Department Office staff and VA&R chairman and Mary Kuperus for helping with the program.

Thank you also for the 245 Unit donations and memorials received to keep this program going. It is so appreciated by this veteran population.

And the Poppy Contest winners are ...
